VICTORIA MARKET.

The Directors respectfully inform the Public that the New Market, on Fort and Broughton streets, is now completed and open for the sale of Island and other Produce. The necessity for a Market in a central situation has long been felt, and the Directors are confident that the advantages offered by the company will meet the requirements of buyers and sellers. The various commodities for household use, such as Fish, Butcher-meat, Poultry, Eggs, Fruit, Vegetables, &c., &c., can all be purchased on the one spot with advantage to the buyer both in quality and price. At the same time competition will enable the Farmer and Market Gardener to dispose of their produce at more remunerative prices, and they will not be under the necessity of sacrificing articles of a perishable description.

In making their arrangements the Directors have endeavored to assist the Settler as far as possible in the disposal of his produce, and they are prepared to undertake the sale if desired on liberal terms, or to offer Stalls for rent BY THE DAY, for the accommodation of parties making only occasional sales.

The Directors hope that while the low rents charged will ensure support from the seller, that the sanitary arrangements, as well as the convenience and comfort afforded to purchasers, will ensure liberal support from the public at large.
